'Rescue' Comes From the Most Unusual Of Places

I was thinking this week about the love that Jesus wants us to share, and I was reminded of this thought for the day that I heard on radio Sheffield last year when I was studying. I am afraid I do not know who said it so I can't give credit, but I was fortunate enough to find the script. It meant a lot to me at a time when I was feeling vulnerable and asked others for prayer. It was this love and care and prayer from others that upheld and supported me. My prayer for you all today; in a world that often seems bare and bereft of love, is that you can feel upheld by the love and care for each other. Let us continue to build a community of love that watches over one another. But what does it mean to watch over each other in love? This reflection illustrates so well my thoughts....

A picture I saw last week which was circulating the internet was of a man who had tried to jump from a bridge to end his life – he had been somehow stopped by someone grabbing hold of him – and soon enough more passing people stopped and started to join in holding him secure and tight. The image showed various different hands holding him to the bridge – someone had tied a bike chain around his waist – stranger's arms were stretched through the bars, and holding other people's hands – clenching tight to hold him in place. It was some time before the emergency services freed him. But all the time he was held, even at his most vulnerable – when the world for him seemed so bleak, there were others who saw his worth, his life as meaning something – his life as precious. His life was worth saving.

Throughout the time the man was held, he was spoken to by those around him – no doubt words of love, and encouragement. One man held his head pressed to the side of the distressed man – the picture could never reveal the words uttered, but I imagine they were sacred.

The picture to me showed the sacramental nature of loving those who don't love themselves. Loving those who feel they are unloved, or unlovable.

The sermon was in the image.
The sacred was in the holding
The sacrament in the story.
Life can be hard at times.

Sometimes our 'rescue' comes from the most unusual of places, by those we don't even know. Jesus seeks the lost – even today – even now – even this minute. He is holding onto you in your bleakest of times – by his spirit he whispers to us. And we all need to be saved by him.

Be blessed

Commonwealth War Graves Commission

A number of people have noticed the plaque outside Alne Churchyard. It records the presence of the war grave of Robert Crosby, who died of influenza in October 1918. Robert was an Australian soldier whose family originated from this area – his grandfather's family lived in the Mill House between Alne and Tollerton. His grave is at the back of the churchyard, close to the iron railed area.

Alne Oil Co-operative

Founder member of the Lower Swale Syndicate of Oil Co-operatives

The Story So Far

After a certain amount of discussion regarding who would run it, the Alne Heating Oil Co-operative was formed in late 2009, following a successful model that had been operating in Brafferton/Helperby. By joining forces with the Brafferton/Helperby Co-operative, we were able to benefit from their experience. The alliance also improved our combined buying power. We placed our first order in January 2010, with 7 members ordering around 7,500 litres of oil.

The buying model was straightforward; we would ask members how much oil they needed, then go out to tender to the local suppliers for their best price. The scheme proved very successful, with other villages in the area asking if they could join us, and the Lower Swale Syndicate of Oil Co-operatives grew in size. In fact, it was too successful, as the suppliers found that they could not cope with the large orders we were placing every other month.

This required a different approach. In consultation with members and suppliers, we changed the buying model in 2014 to one where we sought a strategic partnership with the supplier that could offer the best value deal to the members, based on an agreed uplift on the commodity price for heating oil. (Please note “value”, not “price” – we needed to be sure that the relationship with the supplier was sustainable and mutually advantageous.) Tate Fuels of Otley came out on top both in our analysis and the choice of the members.

Members can now order oil at any time to suit (excluding December, the busy month, when regular market prices apply), and Tate Fuels will deliver within 10 working days at the agreed price above the commodity (ex-refinery) price. There is no penalty for smaller quantities, the price is the same whether ordering 500 or 5,000 litres. The price charged will be that applying on the delivery date. Because the arrangement is based on the commodity price, it is easy for us to confirm that the correct price has been charged.

Out of necessity (I work full-time running a couple of businesses) the scheme is e-mail and internet based. If you are not computer-savvy, maybe you can ask a friend, neighbour or relative to help you get started. Once set up as a member, Tate Fuels will, by exception, accept orders by telephone for those not able to use the website option.

Whilst very little in life is guaranteed, we expect to beat the best local prices (as published by Boilerjuice) by between 5% and 10%. And there have been some horror stories, where folk have been overcharged by as much as 81% compared with the Syndicate price on the same day!

We now have nearly 1,000 members, buying well in excess of 1.5 million litres of oil every year.

If you're not already in the Co-operative, why not join? You will undoubtedly save money by comparison with your existing supplier and Tate's service has been outstanding! Membership is open to all — if you live in or around Alne and want to know more about the Alne Heating Oil Co-operative, please send an e-mail to: alne@swaleoil.org.uk or visit the Alne Village website at: www.alnevillage.co.uk/groups_oil.html
