

WELCOME FROM Richard Flinton, Chief Executive

This week, I am pleased to share some really hopeful news courtesy of the York and North Yorkshire Federation of Small Business. The organisation represents around four thousand businesses here and their most recent survey reveals that confidence in a bounce back from the pandemic is higher here than it is nationally! Nearly 50 per cent of the businesses involved in the survey also said they had plans to grow over the coming months. This is really positive, particularly given that many sectors are not able to reopen to capacity due to social distancing and other covid-secure measures. Speaking at our weekly media briefing today, Carolyn Frank, who is the Development Manager for the FSB in North Yorkshire, praised the resilience and creativity shown across many sectors and talked about the importance of the large number of independent retailers welcoming back customers in many of our market towns once more. Many are trading over longer hours and opening seven days to adapt their business to the restrictions in place. I was particularly pleased to hear about the new and exciting start-ups that are being born here during a time of unprecedented challenge. I also completely agree with Carolyn when she praises the loyalty of the people of North Yorkshire during a time of crisis. Your continuing support to help reignite our economy will be vital in helping us create new opportunities for skills and jobs as we emerge from the pandemic. We will be doing everything we can to ensure every chance to stimulate clean economic growth is supported here. In the words of Carolyn, many of our businesses 'are going for it in a covid-secure way' – let's keep supporting them and help our special county back onto its feet. You can hear more from Carolyn here:

Today, the Covid rates in North Yorkshire stand at 26 per 100,000. That continues generally to reflect the England average, which stands at 22 per 100,000 over a seven-day average. We do have two areas above the national rate – one of which is Selby, which I discussed in some detail in this bulletin last week. This is largely linked to a workplace outbreak and is being very carefully managed by the affected business, Clipper, and a number of the agencies involved. Our director of public health has put additional measures in place, including more testing, to ensure this is contained and reduced effectively. All indications are that this multiagency approach is effective, but it is a reminder that we will all be living with covid for the foreseeable future and we must not forget the actions we know to be very effective in protecting ourselves. Washing our hands, keeping our distance, covering our face and letting fresh air in – together these remain a key aspect of our defence.

Of course, another is the hugely successful vaccination programme. As of today our wonderful NHS colleagues, supported by an army of volunteers, have successfully administered nearly 380,000 doses of the vaccine here in North Yorkshire. Take-up here remains good and, together with a robust testing programme, this is extremely important to our road map out of restrictions. Thank you to everyone who is supporting this and we are reassured that supply will be in place to ensure that we reach that target of offering all adults a first dose by the end of July. Together, all these measures will help us unlock summer and we are grateful for everyone's support.

One of the topics where the pandemic has offered some opportunity is climate change. Fewer cars and less travel on the roads and a greater awareness of the value of the space and clean air across our communities. We are committed to taking on board all learning to support a green economic recovery here, and often it can be the cumulative value of smaller changes we all make that deliver lasting improvements. One small but important step may be to reuse and recycle more and that includes food waste. If, like me, you are a keen gardener looking to reduce CO2 emissions – and given its Compost Awareness Week – you may wish to take advantage of our cut-price compost bin offer. Find out a bit more about how to turn kitchen waste into great compost here:

Finally, this week I would like to join my colleagues at the County Council in congratulating Harrogate Town on that fantastic achievement of lifting the FA Trophy on Monday. I absolutely agree that they are a great example of a community grassroots club doing really well at a national level. We have heard a great deal about the impact on people's mental health of the three lockdowns and much about the vital part sport and physical activity can play in helping people's health and wellbeing. Grassroots sports are springing back into life and your support remains vital. Not just as the events season approaches, but for our own good, too.

So do, please, get out and enjoy the county's rich offer – safely! There is no better place to be, in my humble opinion!

North Yorkshire Coronavirus Data

At 2 May 2021, there have been 29,936 positive tests since 3 March 2020, with 327 new cases reported in the past two weeks. The weekly rolling average of new cases is 30 cases per day, allowing for incomplete data in the most recent days. The seven-day rate for North Yorkshire is 26.4 cases per 100,000 people, higher than the England seven-day rate of 22.4. Work continues to ensure effective monitoring of all areas, with support for incidents being provided across a range of settings, which are reviewed daily.

Events Update – help to unlock summer!

As we move through the Government’s roadmap out of lockdown, we see the gradual lifting of restrictions on events. From Step 1b (29 March) outdoor grassroots sport and outdoor socially distanced under-18 activities have been allowed to resume. From Steps 2-4, events organised by businesses, charitable organisations, sporting and public bodies will be permitted, providing that certain conditions are met. The guidance varies according to the type of event, and could include outdoor events, funfairs, performing arts or sports events. For full details of relevant dates and types of permitted events, visit the gov website.

If you are organising an event

- Follow all relevant Covid-secure guidance depending on the type of event, and complete a related risk assessment.
- Ensure that organisers and attendees adhere to all legal requirements, including maintaining group sizes permitted by social contact restrictions at the relevant step in the roadmap and preventing mixing between groups, enforcing social distancing guidelines and mandating face coverings in indoor areas where required.
- Ensure that all reasonable action has been taken to mitigate risk to public health.
- In North Yorkshire, we require all event organisers to consider 14 key principles when producing all event plans and associated risk assessments. Further information, and details of who to contact if you are planning an event can be found here.

If you are planning to attend an event

- Please follow all relevant guidance, and adhere to the messaging and instructions provided by the organisers.
- “Know before you go” - do some research on the event, so you understand what measures will be in place and what will be required of you.
- Remember ‘Hands. Face. Space. Fresh air’.
- If you are unwell or are required to self-isolate, you must not attend the event.

Impact on local community

A comprehensive communications plan for all attendees and the local community reinforcing key principles for staging the event is vitally important. Organisers must consider how attendees get to the event, including the impact on and capacity of public transport, car parking (consideration whether more space is required as attendees should not be car sharing), impact on road network and emergency services. It is essential that event organisers engage with the local community to provide assurance that the event is taking place within the Covid requirements and the actual footprint of the event is also being managed.

Research into lifting restrictions on events

Over the spring, the government is running a scientific Events Research Programme, which includes a series of event pilots, using enhanced testing approaches and other measures, to run events with larger crowd sizes and reduced social distancing to evaluate the outcomes. The findings will help determine the approach to lifting restrictions on events. Depending on the outcome, and subject to the government's four tests at all stages in the roadmap, the government hopes to be able to lift restrictions on these events and sectors as part of Step 4 (no earlier than 21 June).

We can all play our part. Covid is not over yet – stick to the rules to unlock the next level.

Supporting our schools and childcare

Safety and hygiene procedures to prevent the spread of coronavirus remain in place in schools across North Yorkshire. The Government is set to review its current guidance at the end of this month, but we are not expecting a change to the current instructions to schools.

As long as we keep background rates low, we're asking schools to keep up their good work. The measures are working very well and attendance at all our schools to remain high.

The food voucher scheme to help families cover the cost of food or other essentials, is set to continue this May half-term holiday.

We have received up to £338,000 of funding from the Department of Work and Pensions to ensure families in receipt of free school meals – and families who are struggling to provide food for children during the pandemic – can continue to cover the cost of food for children or other essentials such as utilities over the school holiday.

Funding has now been sent out to schools, including academies, early years providers, child minders and care leavers in North Yorkshire, so they can distribute supermarket vouchers to those eligible. The vouchers amount to £15 per child, for the week.

The Covid Local Grant scheme is a continuation of the Covid Winter Grant scheme, which has been used over previous school holidays. We anticipate the latest round of funding will benefit up to 20,000 individuals across the county.

Teamwork to support our residents

Teamwork to support our residents

For over a year, the County Council has been working alongside our partners with 23 community support organisations and the voluntary sector to provide a safety net of support for people without family, friends or neighbours to lean on during the pandemic. Thousands of volunteers have helped with shopping, collecting medication, walking pets, taking people to medical appointments and being there for a friendly chat.

As restrictions have eased, community support organisations are now shifting their focus to gradually building people's confidence as well as continuing to offer support to people who are self-isolating or limiting their social contact.

Reassuringly, calls to our customer service centre for Covid-related help and support are now below 50 a week, down from almost 450 last April. In recent weeks, there have been no calls requesting support over the weekend.

Since last March, more than 1,260 Covid-19 support grant scheme awards have also been made through the community support organisations, providing financial assistance to pay for food and household essentials during isolation. The majority of applicants have long-term health conditions or weakened immune systems and Scarborough is the district that has received the most awards to date. Food remains the primary award type received, though support for energy and utilities has increased since February. The scheme will be reviewed again in September.

North Yorkshire residents who need help and support, or anyone concerned about the welfare of someone else, can contact North Yorkshire County Council's customer service centre on 01609 780780 seven days a week 8am to 5.30pm. People can also complete an online form to let us know what help they need at www.northyorks.gov.uk/covidhelp.

People can also find details of other local voluntary and community groups offering support at www.northyorkshireconnect.org.uk.
